

Abstract

A system and a method for delivering location sensitive services within a short-range wireless environment. Service proxies are employed to customize queried information and make available services according to user identity and location.

6020.0200